GERALD EDELMAN

Our Position on Lobbying and Political Activity

Gerald Edelman LLP, including its subsidiaries, does not engage in lobbying or political advocacy, either directly or through third parties acting on our behalf. We use “lobbying” as B Lab’s standards define it. We do not make political donations or contributions to political parties, candidates or campaigns.

We do not lobby for changes to tax legislation on behalf of the firm, our clients or any third party.

As a regulated accountancy firm, we are members of professional bodies such as the ICAEW. We may also respond to public consultations in line with our professional obligations and our tax philosophy. We do not consider this to be lobbying.

If Gerald Edelman decides to engage in lobbying or advocacy in future, we will first adopt and publish a Responsible Lobbying Policy in line with B Lab’s standards, and update this statement.

This statement has been approved by the Partners and is reviewed annually.
